

Wearables in Education

Department of Writing Studies

Bilal Abdelqader

Nathan Ernst

Laura Gee

Xander Westgaard

Wearables Research Collaboratory

The Wearables Research Collaboratory (WRC) is an open collaboration and research space for wearables-related initiatives, projects, and ideas stemming from the burgeoning interest in wearables and their impact on users and their work. As a collaboratory, we represent an incubator for bold ideas, and an environment where participants explore emerging wearables and share empirical direction for investigating the challenges and opportunities these technologies represent.

wrcollab.umn.edu

Research Assistant Roles

Exploring emerging technologies

Engaging with internal (LATIS) and external tech communities

Studying the uses and implications of technologies in terms of impact on culture, communication, and collaboration

Write Pollinator Grant (LATIS) to acquire and investigate emerging technologies

LATIS = Liberal Arts Technologies and Innovation Services

Google Cardboard

HTC Vive

360° Cameras

Google Daydream

Pop-up
Event

